The culturally devastating power and influence of one man was amplified and leveraged by his books, Sexual Behavior in the Human Male, later analog book on the human female, nationwide Kinsey lectures in packed university athletic stadiums, massive cash infusions by the Rockefeller Foundation, personal relationships with the most prominent American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) attorneys, and direct assistance by the ACLU and Planned Parenthood. Kinsey's self-proclaimed "pamphleteer" Hugh Hefner enthusiastically broadcast Kinsey's message to the general public through the so-called "Playboy Philosophy," which packaged immorality in professional-sounding psychological euphemisms. The Rockefeller Foundation proved to be a major driving force for developing the Model Penal Code (MPC) sponsored by the American Law Institute (ALI). All authors of the 1955 MPC were Kinsey partisans. The revolutionary ALI-MPC was accepted by the United States Supreme Court in U.S. v Roth (1957). The Code bolstered by thousands of Kinsey's "expert" citations in hundreds of legal cases and many thousands of scholarly law journals, psychology journals, and sociology journals became the hammers to bludgeon from the law books at least 52 categories of sex and morality crimes, thus catastrophically undermining the Biblical foundation of the American culture.

You and your loved ones are now living in the "post-Kinsey era" that was launched in 1948. Every hour of every day, you are affected by radically sexualized education, laws, healthcare, politics, media, entertainment, fashions and behavior, all institutionalized by Prof. Kinsey's disciples. If you are like most Americans, you probably wonder how we went from the America that the Greatest Generation knew to a place where... • God and the Ten Commandments are purged from our public schools • The Commandments were soon replaced on schoolhouse walls by STD and AIDS posters • Doctors and major pharmaceutical companies criminally experiment on infants<sup>1</sup> • "Assisted suicide" and euthanasia threaten the lives of sick and elderly people • Countless Web sites make obscene pornography instantly available to all • So many adults and youths are addicted to pornography that treating them is now a growth industry for sex therapists • 65 million Americans have at least one venereal disease (now euphemized as "STDs") • 19 million are infected each year with STDs, many incurable and some fatal • Increasing numbers of university presidents, administrators, professors, coaches, doctors, clergy, teachers and school counselors have been convicted of obscene child pornography, torture and sex crimes against children • Respected universities sponsor courses for credit in which vulnerable students “study” pornographic/obscene films

Sexually deviant professors require terrified students to view obscenity/pornography and to report their states of “arousal” • More than 2,000 Pentagon personnel who paid for online child pornography/obscenity remain uninvestigated by authorities • A famous Johns Hopkins University psychiatrist, Dr. Fred Berlin, “destigmatizes” pedophiles as mere “minor- attracted persons” • Pedophiles seek to end age-of-consent laws—which they euphemize as “intergenerational male intimacy” • Smiling politicians march in “gay pride” parades alongside the “North American Man-Boy Love Association” • Homosexuals who arrange to couple together legally adopt children • Police officers do nothing as nude men and women commit illegal perverted sex acts at public “gay” events

Note:

Violating the will of the voters, judges and lawmakers impose homosexual “marriage” on entire states • United Nations sex radicals pressure abortion “rights,” “gay rights” and children’s “sexual rights” on the entire world • Abortionists killed more than 50 million unborn babies, creating a lucrative traffic in these babies’ body parts • Philanthropic foundations like Ford and Rockefeller, and scores of corporations like PepsiCo, Sears Roebuck, J.C. Penny, Office Depot, Barnes & Noble, Safeway, Target, Office Max, Home Depot, Costco, Walgreens, Hallmark Cards and Google, pour millions into marketing “...

Rapes and rape-murders of women and children, often serial in nature, are increasingly common occurrences • The careers of one politician after another implode in sex scandals involving adultery, even child abuse • Movies and TV shows insert hetero and homosexual nudity, sex, rapes, gutter language and ridicule of sexual morality • Major hotel chains make barely legal “teen” pornography and other obscene videos available to all their guests, of any age • “Sexology” institutes train many thousands of “sexperts” and “sex educators” who impart anything-goes sex training to countless couples, educators, college...

Note:

Classics such as Tom Sawyer are forgotten as publishers market award-winning “kiddie-lit” pornography featuring rape, incest, sodomy, homosexuality, transgender, suicide, masturbation and family nudity • Schoolgirls increasingly think it harmless to post naked photos of themselves on the Internet or “sexting” them to current boyfriends • The “news” media censor evidence that male and female teachers commit more child sex abuse than do priests and other clergy • As was done earlier to American Indian and Australian Aborigine children, “over one million North American” children (circa 2002), ripped from innocent parents, are sent to...

Note:

• The State markets “same-sex marriage” as normal, thus covers up early sex abuse as largely causal in bi/homosexuality/transgenders • Legalizing “same-sex marriage” equates injurious, formerly criminal sodomy with the God-ordained conjugal act designed to cement the institution of matrimony for the dedicated rearing of children • Over half of all children birthed by American women under 30 are born out of wedlock<sup>5</sup> • In 1950, 96 percent of children overall had married parents; now 63 percent have married parents (resulting in 1.5 million fatherless children born each year)<sup>6</sup> • In 1950, 85 percent of black children had married...

We have gone from two major venereal diseases in the 1960s to now having over 25, some incurable, even fatal<sup>9</sup> • Thousands of pulpits remain silent about these horrors,...

Another major influence on Kinsey was Charles Darwin, the English naturalist who is credited with formulating the theory of evolution in such works as The Origin of Species (1859).<sup>4</sup> Kinsey was so impressed with Darwin’s scientific acumen that, upon graduating magna cum laude from Bowdoin in 1916, he quoted him in his commencement address.<sup>5</sup> Following graduation, from Bowdoin College, Kinsey continued his studies at Harvard’s Bussey Institution, which was a hotbed of Darwinism and the “New Biology” that led scientists to envision improving the human species through “eugenics.” Jones identifies Kinsey as one of the scholarly pre-World War II eugenicists who issued a “terrifying” call for the mass sterilization of “lower level” Americans and a breeding plan for superior classes.<sup>6</sup> Sir Thomas Huxley (1825-1895), the foremost proponent of Darwinism in England, was credited by Kinsey with crafting a scientific “declaration of independence.”<sup>7</sup> Kinsey claimed to agree with Huxley’s dogged determination to accept only those “facts” which could be confirmed via the scientific method. No other authority (including church and state) was accepted. Kinsey would also play in the same elite eugenic league as Sir Thomas Huxley’s grandsons, Aldous and Julian. Sir Julian Huxley, a geneticist and first director-general of UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization) became acquainted with Kinsey’s work through Indiana University President Herman Wells. In 1932, Aldous Huxley wrote Brave New World, which became required reading in many American schools. It is often misunderstood as “science fiction,” but was actually an exposé of the cosmopolitan eugenic vision of state-controlled free love and selective breeding. As “shy” as he was around women, Kinsey was much at home with young boys. He preferred their company in both outdoor and indoor settings. He joined the Boy Scouts at about age 17, and later as a married man continued to wear his Scout uniform, take boys on nature hikes and the like, and sleep alongside them in tents. Claiming that Kinsey’s obsession with boys was entirely platonic, Pomeroy and Christenson insist that he led a largely sexless life. Evidence from Kinsey’s own writings, however, raised serious questions about his sexual orientation long before publication of Jones’ Alfred C. Kinsey confirmed his deviancy. Even in college he opted for the companionship of youths and boys. A report by Patrick Boyle, author of Scout’s Honor: Sexual Abuse in America’s Most Trusted Institution, describes Kinsey’s role in removing a warning about masturbation from the Scout handbook. According to Boyle, an early edition of the handbook advised Scoutmasters: Because boys of Scouting age are naturally curious about sex, you may... discover or hear about incidents of sexual experimentation among troop members... Incidents of sexual experimentation call for a private and thorough investigation, and frank discussion with those involved.

Like Kinsey, fascist scientists in Germany<sup>31</sup> believed that they had a right to experiment on anyone. Dr. von Balluseck<sup>32</sup> was an incest offender who raped and sodomized not only his own offspring, but Jewish, Polish, and German children as well, from roughly 1927 to 1957. The German press reported Kinsey’s visit to Frankfurt during his world tour in 1956. Little else is available regarding the German stopover, or if Kinsey met with Balluseck, and there was no mention of Kinsey’s visit to Frankfurt in the approved writings about Kinsey’s European travels. Virtually without exception, the basis of professional sexual training is Kinsey’s duplicitous data, and that of his disciples who have built upon the false foundation he established. From the “informal” sex education reaching nearly all children via pornography, to the “formal” sex education from doctorate to kindergarten, the Kinsey Model is the monopoly. The foundation of the modern sex industry then, from sex commerce to the sex “expert” who serve as expert witnesses for pornographers, all stand on the legitimacy of wholly illegitimate, criminal pseudoscience. Next we will examine how this “education” process has been used to reshape our laws on sex offenses, to fit the Kinsey Model, impacting the lives of every American. One of several other “special interest” associations whose economic and social base now includes “sexuality instruction” is the American Association of Marriage and Family Counselors. The current decisions by the American Psychiatric Association (1994) in its Diagnostic and Statistical Manual IV to remove pedophilia, masochism and sadism as mental or psychological disorders and a 1999 article in the American Psychological Association Bulletin which would normalize adult sex with “willing” children, means these two powerful mental health agencies have joined forces with Kinsey’s other pedophile advocates.<sup>38</sup> Kinsey’s ACLU attorney, Morris Ernst, was a key Planned Parenthood lawyer, while, as noted, Kinseyan Dr. Mary Calderone had served as medical director of Planned Parenthood. Dr. Calderone was a founder and first executive director of SIECUS. She and Kinsey co-author, Paul Gebhard, would be very influential authorities in the Roe v. Wade decision. Roe includes a footnote citation to Draft No. 9 (May 8, 1959) of the American Law Institute-Model Penal Code (ALI-MPC), which in turn states: “Major sources of information on abortion include two sources: Calderone, Abortion in the United States (1958); Gebhard and others, Pregnancy, Birth and Abortion, chap. 8 (1958).”<sup>39</sup> In

The attempt to show massive abortions—and the harmlessness of abortions if performed by physicians—required that the Kinsey team find, as they did, that abortions were largely beneficial. They actually improved marriages, and were found safe and morally acceptable to the medical profession. But, to do so meant that almost all abortions had to be carried out by “physicians” with largely favorable results. To accomplish this flight of fancy, the Kinsey team returned to their successful ploy of redefining the common English language—like that of “married” women—which inevitably misled and confused legislators, the public and other scholars, as well as judges and juries.

Both Hermann Muller and Kinsey appeared in the pages of Sexology, a pseudo-medical sex journal on whose board sat Kinsey colleagues Harry Benjamin and Rene Guyon. Muller and Kinsey agreed on the need to replace religion with scientific belief and sexual restraint with sexual license. They also shared an enthusiasm for “positive eugenics," the elimination of defective genetic stock by mass sterilization. In The Human Agenda (1972), medical ethicist Roderick Gorney connects eugenicist Muller with Aldous Huxley's predictions in Brave New World:

The "Grand Scheme" shared by Kinsey and like-minded eugenic and legal elites, would do no less than gut the Old and New Testaments as America's founding common law order. Kinsey's closeted cadre were at war. They would deconstruct the Common Law, anointing science as the nation's religion and scientists as the new priest class. But, the renowned Jewish authority Rabbi Daniel Lapin, author of America's Real War has summarized what is at risk when the Christian roots of this nation are destroyed:

The immense blitz and publicity aroused overwhelming public interest in Kinsey's first book, Sexual Behavior in the Human Male, supposedly came as a surprise to its authors and publisher. That is doubtful, however, considering the enormous advance effort to promote it, including efforts of the Rockefeller-connected mass media to effusively hype the book and its culturally corrosive message. But how did this bow-tied, Midwestern biology professor become a savvy public relations wizard capable of conducting a book promotion rivaling that of a Madison Avenue ad agency? An indication of the answer is found in the record of the Rockefeller Foundation's extensive influence on mass communication. The Rockefeller Foundation funded communications experts from the field of social science to shape pre- and postwar public attitudes. In 1954, the American Statistical Association (ASA) published Statistical Problems of the Kinsey Report: A Report of the American Statistical Association Committee to Advise the National Research Council Committee for Research in Problems of Sex, by Cochran, Mosteller, Tukey and Jenkins. Jones documents the fact that the ASA yielded to unrelenting pressure from the Rockefeller Foundation and the National Research Council to alter their original conclusion that Kinsey's statistics were meaningless.<sup>2</sup> The Kinsey Institute began collecting obscenity prior to publication of the 1948 Male volume. Kinsey received Rockefeller monies for his "library" activities in 1946. Moreover, in his May 7, 1951 letter to "CIB," Warren Weaver complains that Kinsey's "library of erotic literature, and a collection of pictures and other 'art' objects of erotic significance" were essentially funded by Rockefeller. By 1989, a Rockefeller-funded National Research Council AIDS report said America could be divided into "pre-Kinsey" and "post-Kinsey" eras.<sup>3</sup> The Founders had woven fixed laws and principles into the fabric of the new nation. Kinsey and his associates considered the legal prohibitions and societal restrictions in Judaism and Christianity as “repressive,” archaic and harmful. He and his legal colleagues embarked on a voyage to reopen as “new,” the old pagan world. Like

The Foundation enthusiastically supported the concept of “eugenics,” which encourages the reproductive efforts of those deemed to have “good” (“eu” from the Greek for good) genes, while discouraging or stopping procreation by undesirables. This view had motivated the Foundation’s earlier support of Planned Parenthood founder Margaret Sanger, and her eugenic and birth control movement. But Rockefeller and others were anxious to go even further to mold America’s breeding patterns along evolutionary lines. The Rockefeller Foundation considered Kinsey’s “quantitative content” sex research of critical importance to the “grand scheme.” As Professor Christopher Simpson wrote in Science of Coercion: The Foundation sought “quantitative” data to provide “a tool for social management” that is postwar “psychological warfare” with which to impose the will of the elite “on the masses.”<sup>5</sup> While many legislators and judges were concerned about the influence of tax-exempt foundations on American life, The Rockefeller Foundation funded Kinsey and then funded the American Law Institute’s production of the Model Penal Code (MPC). The Rockefeller Foundation knew that Kinsey’s data, compiled by rapists, incest offenders, pedophiles, homosexuals, prostitutes, etc., were unreliable and criminal. Yet the American Law Institute MPC authors—Wechsler, Ploscowe, Guttmacher, Tappan, and Schwartz—used Kinsey’s aberrant criminal population to frame the 1955 model code on sex offenses. The MPC was designed to be sent to state legislatures and especially to influence judges.

By 1955, Kinsey was at the height of his renown. Homosexual author Gore Vidal described him as the “most famous man in America, the world, for about a decade.”<sup>6</sup> In the wake of Reece’s Congressional Investigation, Dean Rusk, then president of the Rockefeller Foundation (and later Secretary of State) terminated the Foundation’s financial support of Kinsey’s sex research.<sup>7</sup> Kinsey had served his purpose. The Foundation had shifted its funds to the American Law Institute. There, Kinsey’s research would be put to use to erode existing laws protecting women, children, marriage and the family and to craft more lenient sex-offender laws via the American Law Institute’s (ALI) Model Penal Code. On April 25, 1955, the ALI released its first Model Penal Code draft (#4), modeled in large part on Kinsey’s recommendations, which helped to alter and liberally revise American sex offender laws and penalties.

Note:

These distinguished ALI-MPC authors hailed from august institutions and were leaders in their professions. They are culpable. They knew or should have known that Kinsey was a fraud. (The Rockefeller Foundation knew his "data" were fraudulent.) The ALI authors' actions and writings reveal a "colorable bias," thereby seriously compromising the work and reputations of the Model Penal Code's "Institute's Reporters."

Note:

Fortunately, Kinsey's findings were not duplicated in the work of Drs. Phyllis and Eberhard Kronhausen, the sexually radical couple<sup>17</sup> who recall also worked to free the world from sexual repression. Their "erotic" museum in Holland and, in an effort to further Kinsey's cause, conducted a sex survey of 200 male college students which they reported in their book Sex Histories of American College Men (1960). The embarrassing secret of the sexual libertarians was that as much as the Kronhausens wanted to justify Kinsey's claims of widespread sexual promiscuity among college males, they were unable even by 1960 to locate such activity on campus. The Kinsey team argued in 1948 and 1953 that sex education was needed to decrease sexual inhibition and increase orgasm, thereby enhancing marriages. Current sex education programs focus even on elementary school children, in part to help them prepare to avoid venereal diseases. During the Kinsey era, the only STDs commonly experienced were syphilis and gonorrhea. Today, after 50 years of Kinseyite conditioning, we can add to the list genital herpes, chlamydia, pelvic inflammatory disease (PID), bacterial vaginosis, trichomoniasis, hepatitis (A, B and C), cervical cancer, and many other maladies. There was a 30 percent increase in reports of syphilis from 1985-1987, and about two million new cases of gonorrhea are reported annually. At least a quarter of the homosexual population is reportedly afflicted with gonorrhea of the tonsils. Chlamydia-related health costs are running around $1.3 billion annually; genital herpes reportedly afflicts about 25 million Americans; cervical cancer and genital warts are estimated at 12 million or so cases nationally; there are around 200,000 new cases of hepatitis B annually; and on and on.<sup>18</sup> Kinsey's philosophy of early childhood sexual development became the standard for today's graphic sex instruction materials in many, if not most, American public, private, and parochial schools, usually camouflaged by such euphemistic captions as sex education, AIDS prevention or awareness, bullying prevention, gender respect, suicide prevention, family life, health, hygiene, home economics, physical education, even "abstinence" education.<sup>18</sup> New 'helpful' programs appear almost daily. Public health data confirm that as Kinseyan-based sex education has metastasized, levels of sexual disease and dysfunction have rocketed upward.

Note:

Kinsey's quantitative research and numbers were a perfect fit with the Rockefeller plan to manipulate the mass media to "shape public attitudes and conduct." Such "social management" meant nothing less than changing America's way of life by altering what Kinsey called "breeding patterns" to conform to an animalistic, (pseudo-evolutionary) view of human sexual conduct as gall-wasps. Simpson describes how agents trained in psychological warfare by the American intelligence and espionage apparatus (i.e., the Office of Strategic Services (OSS), forerunner of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), and the Office of War Information (OWI)) were infiltrated, with assistance from tax-exempt foundations, into influential positions in journalism, politics, university communications departments, and other powerful mass-media positions. There they could work to "engineer mass consent" as described by Christopher Simpson (addressed further in Chapter 10), and Simpson further states: In 1939 the [Rockefeller] Foundation organized a series of secret seminars with men it regarded as leading communication scholars, to enlist them in an effort to consolidate public opinion in the United States in favor of war against Nazi Germany—opposed by many conservatives, religious leaders, and liberals at the time.<sup>27</sup>

World War II psychological warfare work established social networks that opened doors to crucial postwar contacts inside the government, funding agencies, and professional circles [and] unprecedented access to human research subjects.<sup>28</sup> [Emphasis added.] With connections to the mass media via the Rockefeller organization, Kinsey was able to generate widespread public curiosity and interest in his book prior to publication. And selection of the prestigious medical publisher W.B. Saunders served to further enhance the impression that the book was an authentic scientific endeavour.
